Encouraged by the Supreme Court TVA decision, Mr. Icken, for the administration, has planned a chain of ten power-developing dams along the Columbia river to supply power to the Northwest. If it can be sold cheaply enough, it might change the time-bearing sands of the Pacific shore into commercial iron by the electric process.

Judge Gary was much interested in that before he died. Mr. Taylor, present head of "Big Steel," and Mr. Grace, of Bethlehem, might carry that on. What is one corporation's gain could be another corporation's meat.

There is a "BUT" URGY lawyers hope the Supreme Court might to legalize only the Wilson Dam project, started as a war measure, and may later forbid other government power plans, including the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Already this country produces one-half of all the power generated in the world from coal, water, oil, gas, and that wealth of power has produced our prosperity.

The Argentine, building 600 miles of galvanized iron barriers to keep back destructive grasshoppers, has trapped ten thousand tons of the creatures on one Argentine ranch. Ploved under, they would make good fertilizer. It seems a pity to burn them, as was done in the Argentine.

The frightful reproductive power of the insect world should make men thoughtful.

Entomologists tell you that one pair of offspring and descendants could amount to maturity, would produce a living mass as big as the earth. Men might well fight insects instead of butchering each other.

There exists a puzzled Russian family, father and three sons. They decided wisely that notes given to United States manufacturers by the Soviet government would be good and bought them here at a heavy discount. They were good, and the Russians made $2,000,000 profit. Afraid to put that money in Russia, they decided to buy gold and store it in the United States.

Russia would have been safer; our government found one of their safety boxes, confiscated $38,600 in the form of 10,000 of the old $20 gold pieces. This sounds like old Turkey under the Sultan, but the Supreme Court says it is proper.

The recent crash of a plane that killed seven persons mysteriously. A pistol and vials of morphine have been found in connection with the wreck of a bullet fired from the inside of the plane. It is suggested that some passenger, having insured himself heavily or for other reasons, decided to commit suicide and wrecked the plane from the inside. It is a plot for a modern Sherlock Holmes, or a gruesome movie.

England has had its first "death ride and racketeer murder." American style, and the Countess Barbara Hutton Houghton-Reveloff, who expects her baby in "safe" London now, has appointed a "special agent" to protect it from possible kidnappers. But London is still safe. King George's royal crown was dragged through the streets sitting loosely on his coffin with diamonds, rubies and emeralds in it worth millions. Here, such an ornament would be transported in a bullet-proof van; even then it might be dynamited.

The baby's apartment will be protected by double doors and double windows, muffled "germ proof," but nothing in London's foggy winter can take the place for an infant of air-tight, free to all in this country.

Too bad that American babies cannot thrive in the sunshine without danger from kidnappers, or business without interference by racketeers.

The Cleveland Trust Company times this most encouraging line: "Passenger automobiles registered in this country in 1935 were almost a million more in number than they were in the previous year."

No business fact could be more important or more encouraging than that a country, in days, is able to register more new passenger automobiles than the total number existing in many important nations.

Swiss guards, with picturesque costumes designed for them by the Reichswehr, will have charge of a new jail just opened in Vatican City. It will surpass American jails in every way, equipped with a modern electric fence, has only three cells. Nobody in any one of them thus far.

Curley May Push Schuster Charges Himself

His bruised and crushed body wrapped from head to foot in an improvised straitjacket, here is John Martel, victim of accidental burial in a Quincy coke bin, ready to be rushed to Quincy City Hospital. Firemen dug him out of tons of coke, hoisted him with ropes to the huge bin's top, then lowered him 60 feet to the arms of these helpers, who are just placing him safely on the ground.

TRAIN WRECK MAN ENTOMBED IN COKE SAVED

Four men were injured, but escaped more serious injury or death by diving to the ground, today, as two freight trains collided in the South Boston yards of the New Haven railroad, near Fargo street.

Several wooden freight cars burst into flames after the crash. The injured:

FUMES FEEL 3 MURSES AT OPERATING

The heroic battle of a Reading surgeon and three hospital nurses to save a mother and her newborn infant while mysterious fumes slowly robbed them of consciousness was revealed today.

Two of the nurses collapsed at the operating table in Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn. The third staggered out of the room for assistance. The doctor fought on until the baby had arrived. Then he too required medical attention.

The doctor and nurses were Dr. Thomas F. Halpin of Linda street, Reading, Miss Catherine Bradford of Warren avenue, Woburn; Miss Carrie Jones and Miss Martha Doherty, a student nurse. Miss Jones and Miss Doherty live at the nurses' home at the hospital.

MOTHER, CHILD SAFE

The mother and child were reported today to have passed through the ordeal unscathed. Dr. Halpin refused to reveal his name for professional reasons.

The child is a boy and it was the woman's first baby.

The two nurses who collapsed were rendered completely unconscious by the fumes and one of them, Miss Bradford, was revived with considerable difficulty.

The woman was brought to the hospital last night and Dr. Halpin

Joseph A. Tomaseello, Boston congressman, of the state Democratic committee, is critically ill at the Phillips House with a temperature of 104. It was revealed by Governor Curley today.

The governor expressed his sympathy over the misfortune which has befallen the Tomaseello family recently.

Only a fortnight ago Tomaseello's son, Joseph A. Tomaseello, Jr., 21-year-old Brown freshman, died at the hospital his high temperature was attributed to the middle-lure infection.

NEW LAWYER 'FORCED OUT' OF CASE

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20 (AP)—The electric chair in which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been doomed to die the week of March 30 was shown to him in a dramatic episode in the death house yesterday, it was learned today.

Hauptmann peered into the death chamber during the interview with Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney, and C. Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel.

"Hauptmann was like a caged animal," said a person who was present at the interview.

"He continually grasped the bars of his cell with white, clenched fists, and thrust his face between the bars.

"During the interview Leibowitz insisted that a scene be removed from behind Hauptmann's cell. When this was done, Hauptmann could reach through the bars and touch the great door leading to the execution chamber and by extending his hand could look through the little peephole in the door.

Leibowitz opened the peephole and Hauptmann looked through. He stared at the electric chair for a minute and blanched. He shivered and sighed and lost his

CURLEY PUSHES SCHUSTER WAR

Governor Curley, in his first press conference since his return from the South, hinted today he may go personally before the Suffolk grand jury to seek indictment of Governor's Councilor Winfield A. Behar.

District Attorney William J. Sullivan today requested that Curley be indicted as a recommendation that the case first be presented to a lower court.

The Governor said he was letting his personal counsel, J. F. Preeny, decide this matter, but he said Curley would be present at the grand jury call before the grand jury and state to the Governor's Councilor what he had to say.

BACON ATTACKS LONDON AS 'OUTSTANDING CANDIDATE'

KANSAS ANOTHER COOLIDGE, SAYS EX-LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Boston, Feb. 20.—Gaspard G. Bacon, a candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention, said today he believed Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas the outstanding candidate for President.

Bacon, former lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, likened the Kansas to former President Calvin Coolidge.

"Landon is familiar with American political institutions and believes in the American system of government," Bacon said in a prepared speech before the Women's Republican Club.

"He knows human nature and can deal with human beings. He has no subterfuge, no silver tongue, no ineffable smile; he is thoroughly genuine. He keeps his word."

"REAL" CAN LOSE

Bacon said the New Deal could be defeated by the "right" Republican, but not by a "reactionary," whom he called a "reactionary."

He charged the national administration "has not hesitated to stoop to all forms of deceit."

He attacked the Townsend plan. "The obligation to provide social security is the first charge upon the present government," Bacon said. "There is an equally insistent demand that it be provided by measures which are realistic and workable. The tragedy of the Townsend plan is that it raises false hopes in the hearts of poor men and cripples."

ATTACKS PROJECTS

Bacon attacked the "beneficial projects which the New Deal is maintaining by grants of public money."

"We might as well admit to ourselves that we are now embarking upon a difficult campaign," he told the club.

"The national administration has not hesitated to stoop to all forms of deceit. The President has not been unwilling to promote class antagonism. He has gone out of his way to undermine confidence in all business, and, by so doing, has retarded the forces of recovery."

"The New Deal party has a distinct advantage in this contest. It has possession of the patronage of the federal government and that of a large majority of the states. It has control of the public purse, and in 1936 will buy votes with the taxpayers' money just as freely as it did in 1934. It is engaged in a spending orgy, of which a large number of people are the beneficiaries and will continue to be at least until next November."

PERSONAL CONTACT

He said he agreed with Governor Landon that the women can show the way.

"The wholesale dismissal of experienced and conscientious public officials, just because they happen to be Republicans," he said, "is not the way to enlist the support of the fair-minded women of this country."

"Last Saturday," Bacon explained, "the chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee urged the removal of every Republican department head both in the federal and state governments, and, according to the newspaper, 50 Democratic women greeted this constructive suggestion with loud and prolonged cheers."

The former lieutenant governor said he had made "careful examination of Landon's record and had personal contact with him."

"I had the opportunity to talk to him in Kansas last November," Bacon said.

"I found him to be simple, direct, straight-forward and straight-thinking, one who appears to mean what he says and does not say what he does not mean."

"Governor Landon is not blinded by partisanship. He is tolerant and fair-minded, willing to acknowledge the good that has been accomplished under the direction of the opposing party, but equally eager to fight the bad. He does not use artificial party lines."

He urged a casting aside of "artificial party lines."

Mrs. Shepherd Heads Women's Landon Drive

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Shepherd, wife of the philanthropist and art collector, and daughter of the late Edwin C. Riney, vice-president of the Lacksawanna railroad, accepted chairmanship today of the women's division of the Landon for President campaign.

Albert Ottlinger, former attorney general and chairman of the committee to announce Landon, Mrs. Shepherd's appointment at the Hotel Astor.

Mrs. Shepherd, socially prominent, has not before ventured into politics, although she has been active in the social service field.

In an interview she summed up her attitude toward the present national administration in the phrase:

"Too much spending and too many broken promises."

She continued:

"Women in general are dissatisfied with the present administration and they have come to realize the time has arrived that they should do something to bring about a definite change in the political complexion at Washington. I consider it a privilege to be associated with a movement that is designed to bring about such a change."

Solidary Delegates Told for Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Democratic delegation to the Democratic convention at Philadelphia "will be solid for Roosevelt," Jeremiah T. Mahoney, leader of the New York delegation, declared today following a call on President Roosevelt.

Asked whether this statement would include Al Smith, who will be one of the delegates, Mahoney said:

"Smith can speak for himself. Mahoney, who also will be a delegate, is an old friend of the President."

Floyd Collins' Aged Father Dying

Mundeville, Ky., Feb. 20 (AP).—Floyd Collins, 76, father of the famous cave explorer, is dying in a hospital in his home town, where the son was buried.

Collins was described as in delicate circumstances.

Back on Job, Now Let Opponents Beware!

Here is Governor Curley, sun-tanned and fit after his three weeks' vacation in Florida and Cuba, back at his State House desk, all set for action and already drafting a hot reply to his G. O. P. critics. His purposeful pose is one which bodes no good for those who say he has been "sniping" at him during his absence.

which the governor alleges political enemies conspired to destroy him through an attack on former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, he said Dolan's attorney is deciding whether to proceed against the "plotters" in a lower court.

The governor said he had been very successful the last time he went into a lower court to obtain redress for alleged defamatory statements. That was when a former Boston newspaper publisher was jailed for eight months.

The "substitute of all appointments by the political party in control was an innovation, is in keeping with the health of mind and vision of the chief difficulty with appointments made by the party now in control of affairs in this commonwealth lies in the fact that representatives of the newer races were considered, whereas under Republican control they were ostracized."

"The substance of all criticism up to the present shows that it arises from a departure from the doctrine so long followed by representatives of the 'royal purple'."

Defending his financial policy, he said bankers have just taken an issue of one-year state bonds bearing an interest rate of 1 1/2 percent of one per cent, the lowest interest the state has ever had to pay for a loan.

REPLY ON AIRWILL

Governor Curley was asked if he cared to reply to yesterday's statement of Public Utilities Commissioner Henry C. Atwell. The latter told the Ways and Means Committee that all department heads had been ordered by the governor to hire their temporary employees through the governor's special state employment office.

LINDENBERG HEAR COMMONS CRIME QUIZ

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh visited the House of Commons for their first time today.

And heard a member suggest that it would be advisable to suppress publication of detailed evidence in "shocking or offensive trials."

Sir John Simon, home secretary, replied that the government feels the public is already well-protected by present laws.

The Lindberghs, in one of their rare public appearances, stumbled into this scene by chance, and for 20 minutes, during the regular parliamentary question time, they heard John answer a barrage of questions about procedure in criminal trials.

Colonel Lindbergh sat in the distinguished strangers' gallery. Also was recorded the covered privilege of sitting in the section reserved for guests of the speaker's wife.

After the crime questions, Colonel Lindbergh called for his wife, and with several leading members of Parliament continued on a three-hour tour of the House of Parliament.

OHIO C.O.P. POLL FAVORS LONDON

Columbus, O., Feb. 20 (AP).—Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, is leading by more than two to one in the poll of representative Ohio Republicans being conducted by Ed. D. Scherr, G. O. P. state chairman. It was learned reliably today.

A source in a position to know how the Presidential preference vote is being reported:

Over 15,000 ballots mailed to leading Republicans in every county, 4,100 have been returned but Chairman Scherr refused to make public the tabulation saying:

Judge Elisha Brewster sentenced Haddad to two years in a federal penitentiary.

On the charge of violating the law and drug act, the court ordered a not guilty verdict.

Haddad had been on trial for four days. Witnesses had been summoned from all parts of the country.

Weed the Blatherskites Out of Congress

tions from empty heads and with the din of clattering tongues.

Recent Congresses are the worst in the history of the republic, because they are the most selfish, the most self-seeking, the most heedless of consequences, the most indifferent to patriotic considerations.

It is the duty of the citizenry to give more thought and care to the selection of capable representatives.

It is the duty of able men and women—genuine leaders of thought and builders of business—to accept positions of political responsibility.

It might be a good thing, although not an immediately practicable one, to deprive Congress of pay in order to purge it of the cheap little human failures who seek office merely for the money which they have been unable to secure in any other walks of life.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN urged upon the Constitutional Convention a policy of securing public servants for the honor involved, without compensation other than expenses.

He foretold with amazing wisdom the ultimate results of a mistaken policy of compensating public representatives, stating that such a policy would bring forward the cheap little men who sought office for their compensation rather than for its dignity and for the opportunity to render service.

However, we are afflicted with the policy of paying for political service, and although that policy is responsible for most of the extravagance in our government, it cannot be changed immediately.

We can, however, insist upon better service for our public money, and better servants.

The people can with care and thought select better representatives. It is their duty to do so,—their duty to their country and to themselves.

Jury Scorns GARISH

CONSERVATIVE RULES HOLD

By EILEEN McGANN
Fluttering veils... gay bouffants of bright pink flowers... luscious colors... new style ideas refreshing and exhilarating as a walk on a windy day.

These are what the new spring suits brought to the Fashion Congress yesterday. These are what won applauding murmurs from an exclusive group of Boston's socially select and fashion-conscious women.

While quite themselves were the topic of the day, their exciting new accessories, particularly since the show, fresh flowers in the buttonhole, for instance, and bright colored gloves. A hat in a wild plum shade. Homberg with veil tied over their hair and under one chin at grandmother did. Lido violets and matching gloves.

Place cards at the horseshoe shaped table in the French Room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, were set for the following judges: Mrs. C. Terry Colleen, Mrs. Raymond Lapham, Mrs. Morgan H. Harris, Mrs. Leopold Gruener, Mrs. James Gray, Mrs. Charles E. Mason, Mrs. James Fellow, Mrs. Mary Hopkins, Mrs. Walter Wyeth and Mrs. Francis G. Shaw.

Taste and Style

These well-dressed society prominent women proved themselves able commentators on good taste and style.

Miss Annie Brink, fashion editor of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, led the fashion discussion, and emphasized the aims of the Fashion Congress.

"The aim of the Fashion Congress," she said, "is to be a guide to good taste for the general public. Most women, bewildered by the ever-changing fashion parade, need advice about clothes. To know what to wear—and when—is a difficult problem for most women."

"It is natural that many women look to their newspapers for advice in these matters. So the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser are sponsoring the Fashion Congress as a service to its readers who are interested in good taste and in an effort to raise the standard of taste among Boston women."

"You are here to select clothes which are marked by good taste and style. You are also to determine the appropriate uses for these clothes. Embellishes which you select will be marked by the Fashion Congress tag when returned to the stores. Your decisions will be made known to the public through the pages of the sponsoring newspapers."

Violet Gloves

The first controversy of the day was created by the new violet colored gloves. Miss Polly Gardner, pretty blonde social register, was modeling them while wearing an oxford gray tailcoat with accessories in matching violet. The gloves matched fresh violets on her lapel.

There were a few murmurs of disapproval.

"I like it all but the purple gloves," said Mrs. Charles E. Mason. "I just can't adjust myself to them."

"Let's not be too conservative,"

Spring Suits Make Bow

Fluttering Veils and Colors Rule

MRS. MORGAN H. HARRIS MRS. LEOPOLD GRUENER MRS. LATIMER GRAY MISS JOAN TERRY COLLEN MISS POLLY GARDNER MRS. CHARLES E. MASON MRS. JAMES FELLOW MRS. WALTER WYETH MRS. FRANCIS G. SHAW, JR.

some said. And finally, "Personally I like them very much," said Mrs. Raymond Lapham. And that was the general opinion. With a lightning change, Miss Gardner by changing accessories turned the suit into an appropriate costume for country wear.

Mrs. Morgan H. Harris, however, would reserve the tailcoat for town wear whatever the accessories, and would wear only rough tweeds in the country. A point with which several agreed.

Shoes in one of the new tan shades created another interesting discussion. These various shades, ranging from a light tan to a dark brown, were created as an accessory color for gray, blue and green.

3 Piece Suit

Miss Dorothy McKee, lovely young Junior League, appeared in a tailored three-piece suit in gray, the new between-belt-and-gray shade. She wore a low crown derby in brown, a waist, and London tan shoes.

The jurors decided that the London tan shade is a stimulating new eye accent, but they did not approve of its use with the combination of gray and brown in the ensemble. Miss Gardner, with brown or green, they agreed, but it was with gray was questioned by a skeptical few who confessed to their conservatism in the matter.

Flat headed pumps were accorded a definite thumbs down. Not all flat headed pumps necessarily, but these anyway. The pumps in question were worn by Miss Joan Sagardor.

Miss Sagardor would look well in anything," someone said, "but I think these shoes for most people have no style, are not in the least flattering and make the foot look too long."

Although conservatism was there were several ardent champions of these quaint smart Gibson Boy shoes.

The stores and specialty shops which exhibited clothes at yesterday's session were Jordan Marsh Company, Chandler and Company, R. H. White Company, Lamson and Hubbard Company, Hollidge Kennedy's Women's Shop, E. T. Slatery Company, Theodore, Inc. and Fredrick's. All those were exhibited by Wilbur's and Penn the Florist provided the buttonholes.

Ship, 18 Saved By Captain's Wit

A quick-thinking captain saved his steam trawler, the Penguin, and 18 members of the crew from almost certain destruction and death. It was learned today, when the vessel docked at Boston Fish Pier.

While fishing off Georges Bank, 22 miles southeast of Boston, on last Tuesday, the trawler was towing a net through a dense fog which limited visibility to less than 500 feet.

Suddenly, out of the fog, directly ahead, an ocean liner bore down on them. All the crew were on deck, cleaning the fish as they were taken out of the dragging net. Quickly throwing the helm hard to the starboard, Captain John Collins ordered the heavy net released.

As the ocean liner bore down from the line, picked up the smaller ship and tossed it out of the path. The crew said that 30 seconds' delay and the trawler would have been cut in two.

Lawyers Polled On Speedier Trials

Possibility of a concerted move by lawyers to relieve congestion of jury trial lists and establish old-age annuities for lawyers was seen today in the questionnaire sent to the Law Society in Massachusetts.

Among the most important questions were:

Have you any suggestions for relieving the present congestion in the jury trial list?

Are you in favor of judges charging on the facts? Old note: Judges charge only on the law.

Would you favor mandatory old age pension insurance system for lawyers?

Hamilton Hunts 'Skiing Firebug'

Hamilton, Feb. 20—Possibility that a "skiing firebug" was responsible for a $30,000 blaze which today destroyed the summer home of Ray L. Whitman, millionaire clubman, is being investigated.

Fire officials declined to issue a definite statement, but said that ski tracks had been found about the house.

Fanned by a strong wind, the fire threatened to spread to the neighboring estate of Colonel Jacob C. R. Peabody. Firemen were hampered by deep snow and the fact that three-quarters of a mile of hose line had to be laid to Mile river to secure water.

Cook Asks Probe Of Polar Discovery

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.) Chicago, Feb. 20—Dr. Frederick Cook, storm center of the "North Pole fraud" that shook the world a generation ago, came out of retirement today to demand that scientists recognize his claim to discovery of the Pole in 1908.

White haired and weary of being jeered as a faker, the 70-year-old explorer asked that his name be cleared "before I die."

In a letter written to the American Geographical Society on the 25th anniversary of his departure from Greenland, Dr. Cook requested "a full and impartial investigation of my story."

Socialite Jury Approves :: Gay Bright Boutonniers

some said. And finally, "Personally I like them very much," said Mrs. Raymond Lapham. And that was the general opinion. With a lightning change, Miss Gardner by changing accessories turned the suit into an appropriate costume for country wear.

Mrs. Morgan H. Harris, however, would reserve the tailcoat for town wear whatever the accessories, and would wear only rough tweeds in the country. A point with which several agreed.

Shoes in one of the new tan shades created another interesting discussion. These various shades, ranging from a light tan to a dark brown, were created as an accessory color for gray, blue and green.

3 Piece Suit

Miss Dorothy McKee, lovely young Junior League, appeared in a tailored three-piece suit in gray, the new between-belt-and-gray shade. She wore a low crown derby in brown, a waist, and London tan shoes.

The jurors decided that the London tan shade is a stimulating new eye accent, but they did not approve of its use with the combination of gray and brown in the ensemble. Miss Gardner, with brown or green, they agreed, but it was with gray was questioned by a skeptical few who confessed to their conservatism in the matter.

Flat headed pumps were accorded a definite thumbs down. Not all flat headed pumps necessarily, but these anyway. The pumps in question were worn by Miss Joan Sagardor.

Miss Sagardor would look well in anything," someone said, "but I think these shoes for most people have no style, are not in the least flattering and make the foot look too long."

Although conservatism was there were several ardent champions of these quaint smart Gibson Boy shoes.

The stores and specialty shops which exhibited clothes at yesterday's session were Jordan Marsh Company, Chandler and Company, R. H. White Company, Lamson and Hubbard Company, Hollidge Kennedy's Women's Shop, E. T. Slatery Company, Theodore, Inc. and Fredrick's. All those were exhibited by Wilbur's and Penn the Florist provided the buttonholes.

Ship, 18 Saved By Captain's Wit

A quick-thinking captain saved his steam trawler, the Penguin, and 18 members of the crew from almost certain destruction and death. It was learned today, when the vessel docked at Boston Fish Pier.

While fishing off Georges Bank, 22 miles southeast of Boston, on last Tuesday, the trawler was towing a net through a dense fog which limited visibility to less than 500 feet.

Suddenly, out of the fog, directly ahead, an ocean liner bore down on them. All the crew were on deck, cleaning the fish as they were taken out of the dragging net. Quickly throwing the helm hard to the starboard, Captain John Collins ordered the heavy net released.

As the ocean liner bore down from the line, picked up the smaller ship and tossed it out of the path. The crew said that 30 seconds' delay and the trawler would have been cut in two.

CURTAIN DOWN ON FEDERAL DRAMA

VALLEY FORGE BOWS TO CRITICS

"The show can't go on!" That was the new cry today when Hiram Motherwell, New England regional director of the Federal Theater, today called off the performances for tonight and tomorrow of Maxwell Anderson's "Valley Forge."

Against his own wishes, Motherwell, who first deleted parts of the play, revealed that the objections of a "few people" were responsible for stopping the presentation of last year's Broadway hit at the Lexington Town Hall.

A storm of protest has hung over the production from its try-out performances in Plymouth, where S. J. O'Connor, the Rev. Thomas A. Pay, S. J., of St. Mary's Church, North End, asserted a reply should come from the ramp right to the charges of the New York legislator.

Father Pay's remarks came in answer to questions during an address on the subject, "The Catholic in Politics," before a group of 200 parents of children attending Mount Alvernia Academy, Chestnut Hill, at Hotel Somerset.

Pressed for an opinion on the dispute between the priest and congressman, Father Pay said: "It was a regrettable incident and I believe that both Father Coughlin and Congressman O'Connor now believe it was regrettable."

"But I also believe that there is a serious obligation on the part of Father Coughlin to answer the arguments advanced by Congressman O'Connor that many of the statements made concerning him were untrue."

The Jesuit added that he never listened to the radio discourse of the Detroit priest, pointing out that other duties were occupying him at the hour Father Coughlin broadcasts Sunday afternoons.

FINE DRAMA Describing a play, Motherwell said: "It is a fine and inspiring patriotic drama by one of America's most distinguished authors. In fact, it was so highly regarded in New York that it was seriously considered for the Pulitzer Prize."

"No criticism has hitherto been made as to its propriety. However, since a few persons might object to some of the rather forcible language which some of the characters of the time use, I wish to respect their susceptibilities."

Plan to Popularize Air Mail Service

An organized plan to popularize air mail service in New England has been agreed upon by members of the committee on postal facilities of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and a committee representing Acting Postmaster Taggart.

The program, to be put into effect the first week in March, according to Acting Postmaster Taggart, will include a one-month radio program, dramatizing the speed, facilities and service of the air mail; circulation of a postcard of the United States in color, showing the cities now served by air mail; and establishment of a permanent "Air Mail Window" in the main Boston postoffice.

The chamber committee was headed by Frederic B. Eastman and made up of Ernest D. Chase, Gordon M. Craig, George H. Duggan, George E. Michael, Howard M. Tuttle and J. Paul Foster, secretary.

Japan Sends More Troops to Border Tokyo, Feb. 20—An early movement of two Japanese army divisions from Japan to the Japanese-occupied State of Manchukuo was announced today by the Tokyo War Office.

A War Office spokesman said the troop movement involved only the annual replacements, was not connected with Russo-Japanese tension over Far Eastern border incidents and would not increase the Japanese forces in Manchukuo.

Pressed for an opinion on the dispute between the priest and congressman, Father Pay said: "It was a regrettable incident and I believe that both Father Coughlin and Congressman O'Connor now believe it was regrettable."

GOULD HEIRESS WED TO COWBOY

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 20 [AP]—The former Anne Gould Meador, 22, great granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, and Herman H. Elsbury, 24, cowboy and "dude wrangler," were believed on their way to New York City today after their surprise marriage here Saturday.

Elsbury, in a "super-gallon" sombrero, whipcord riding breeches and cowboy boots, and the railroad heiress in a grey traveling suit, were wed by a Congregational minister whose wife and daughter were the only witnesses.

Mrs. Lillian Livingston, sister of the bridegroom living on a ranch 20 miles from Cody, said she had received word from her brother since the wedding, but thought they were on their way to New York in her brother's new automobile.

She said the couple first met when the bride was a guest on the Sunlight Dude Ranch in the summer of 1933. Mrs. Livingston said the girl visited the ranch again last summer.

The wedding ceremony was performed here by the Rev. John C. Blackman of the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Meador was divorced in San Antonio, Texas, from Frank Meador, young bank clerk, Feb. 13. The divorce decree was made in Hartford, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1934.

They occupied a modest home in San Antonio for a brief period and then the heiress was called East by the death of her father. She did not return to her husband.

Before asking the Rev. Mr. Blackman to perform the ceremony, the couple went to the Rev. Charles A. Bennett, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

He said he declined to perform the ceremony as contrary to the laws of the church when informed the bride was a divorcee.

Meador, member of a Texas ranch family and once an aspirant to stage fame, met her in New York City while he was appearing in theatrical productions. They were married in Hartford, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1934.

CENTRAL EUROPE NATIONS BANDING TO BALK REDS

Rome, Feb. 20 (INS)—Impending ratification of the Franco-Soviet mutual aid pact today appeared to be driving central and eastern Europe into a concerted bloc against the dread spectre of Bolshevism.

Amid unmistakable evidence that Poland is being brought into a forerunnership of Italy, Germany and Austria, diplomatic circles here pointed out that formation of such a bloc—Germany, Italy and Poland, joined by Austria—would present a solid front against Red influences in middle Europe. Italy, it was learned, fears Bolshevism may spread through central Europe as a result of the Franco-Soviet alliance, and that Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler are moving swiftly to meet this threat. Possibility of formation of an anti-Red bloc, which might turn Europe's entire political system upside-down, became evident as Germany sounded out the willing consent of Italy and Austria to form the center of a general eastern European non-aggression pact as a counter-blast against the Franco-Soviet alliance. Germany regards the Franco-Soviet pact, now awaiting ratification in Paris, as a danger poised straight at the heart of the Russian and the Baltic current and widely.

Critically ill at Phillips Hospital, is this widely-known contractor, Joseph A. Tomassello of Jamaica Plain. He is suffering from an infection of the inner ear. His son, Joseph A. ## Lowell Victim Fights for Life

Lowell, Feb. 20.—Miss vitality strengthened by a blood transfusion, John McCoy, 42, whose right arm was amputated early yesterday in a spectacular operation 50 feet in the air, was fighting for life today.

Attaches at St. Joseph's Hospital reported his condition was "fair" and expressed the opinion he would recover unless he suffered a relapse due to shock.

He was given more than a quart of blood in a transfusion by John W. Gray, driver for Fire Chief James C. Sullivan.

Other firemen also volunteered as blood donors. They have been tested and those whose blood is favorable are to be called in the event their services are needed. McCoy, whose courage was largely responsible for the success of the operation, according to Dr. N. Glimmer Long, who performed the difficult feat, was rallying fairly today, however, and may pass the crisis without further transfusions.

ZERO COLD HERE NEAR END, BUT SNOW DUE

End of the worst cold spell of the winter is near, the weatherman promised today, although more snow was predicted for tomorrow.

A storm working its way up from the South Atlantic coast is expected to reach Boston within 24 hours.

The mercury, however, will rise slowly today, and tomorrow will be fairly and continued cold, and tomorrow would be cloudy with light snow at night.

SAND STREETS

Hundreds of workmen continued today spread sand on treacherous streets in Boston and suburbs and on highways through the state.

Police were certain today that Mr. Catherine Brown, 67, a widow of 60 Hampden street, Roxbury, died from exposure in Fairbairn street, Roxbury.

Police officers on the woman's face gave rise to the report that foul play had been committed, but further examination revealed that she slipped on the ice and died before being discovered.

From suburban communities came reports of below zero readings. In Bedford the mercury dropped to 18 below while Concord suffered its second coldest winter night with 11 below.

Both Lexington and Cambridge shivered in 12 below temperatures. In Kenna, N. H., the temperature dropped to 23 below.

Maine reported some of the lowest early morning temperatures of the winter, with the cold spot of the state at Bozrah, Me., where an unofficial reading placed the mercury at 21 below.

In Boston Harbor, loose ice drifted in the channels, but did not hamper shipping to any extent. The cutter Harriet Lane broke out pathways through Dorchester Bay to permit oil barges to reach their destinations.

Two vessels, anchored off East Boston Point, dragged their anchors and were crushed into one another.

TANKER HIT BARGE

The British tanker Aveling struck the anchored coal barge Rockharbor. The barge was so great that she could not leave the damage in tow of the tug "Bright".

Another attempt to float the tanker Yankov, grounded off East Boston Airport, was to be made at high tide today. The trailer went forward in a dense fog Sunday morning.

Small boat loads and tug stood by the Boston collar Juncos which ran aground on Mosher Reef at the entrance to New Bedford harbor with 3200 tons of coal in her.

Buzzards Bay is ice-locked again after a short period of comparative freedom, and three fuel barges were held fast.

Harbors all along the shore, including Plymouth and Provincetown, continue to feel the effects of the ice blockade, and Coast Guard vessels were hard at work to keep ship lanes clear.

The extreme cold from the mechanism for opening the draw in the new General Edwards bridge at the Point of Hope, and traffic suffered many delays.

The weather report showed that a storm of severe intensity, bringing snow and sleet, was due to strike Washington and New York sometime tomorrow, but would probably go out to sea before reaching Boston.

Still Another Cold Wave Hits Mid-West

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP)—A new cold wave from Canada today cancelled the nation's brief respite from Arctic weather.

The icy blasts were fanned when a low pressure area that promised to keep things a little warmer was shut out by the western slopes of the Rockies.

Temperatures rose from 2 to 15 degrees east of the Rockies, except New England, during the night, but the weatherman predicted they would drop during the next day or two.

The zero line, which cut across northern Nebraska and Iowa to Michigan this morning, was due to stretch southward over Nebraska and Iowa tonight.

Dr. Halpin Tells Own Story of Gas Poison

Here is Dr. Thomas F. Halpin's story of his battle to save the lives of a mother and her new-born baby in Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn, while James slowly robbed him and three attending nurses of consciousness.

"I was called to the hospital to attend a woman patient whose baby was about to be born."

"The woman was taken to the delivery room, where, with three assistants, I was to perform the operation."

"Nothing unusual developed until the child was almost born when I noticed that I was gradually getting very drowsy. I fought to shake off the feeling."

"One of the nurses slowly crumpled to the floor. She was followed a few moments later by the other. I continued my work which was practically completed at that time."

"The third nurse, herself apparently seriously affected, made her way with some difficulty to the large folding doors which mark the entrance to the room."

"When she opened it, a welcome blast of fresh air rushed in and revived me."

"Meanwhile Dr. Daniel Joyce, who is also connected with the hospital, rushed into the room in response to the nurse's call. He assisted me in removing the mother and child from the room. After that he administered first aid to all four of us."

"Both mother and child are in splendid condition and were apparently unaffected by the fumes. I believe that the mother was bothered particularly because she was under the influence of a preparation which lessens pain. It calms a patient considerably and while in that state the body does not require so much oxygen as ordinarily."

"At the moment I am not fully recovered from the effects of the experience. I have been rather ill from it I suspect though that certain of the sterilizers consumed most of the oxygen in the room and that we were all victims of carbon monoxide poisoning."

summoned to assist at the birth of the baby.

When the prospective mother was placed in the delivery room on the top floor of the hospital, Dr. Halpin and his three aides took their places.

The operation was almost complete when the fumes, believed by the doctor to have been carbon monoxide, began to take effect.

He felt himself gradually going weak and drowsy, but he kept at his task.

First one nurse slowly crumpled to the floor, surgical instruments fell in her hands.

The second nurse followed her in a few seconds. But Dr. Halpin kept at his task, now with increasing difficulty.

The third nurse, perhaps a little stronger than the other two, made her way to double doors at the entrance to the operating room.

As she flung them open, a blast of fresh air rushed into the room, partially reviving the doctor and enabling him to finish his task.

By this time, Dr. Daniel Joyce of Main street, Woburn, had been summoned by the nurse.

He assisted Dr. Halpin to take the mother and child to another part of the hospital. Only then did Dr. Halpin stop.

TOWNSENDITES HAIL PROBE AS BOON BY INDIANS

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Congressional investigation of the Townsend and other old age pension movements was "welcome" by officials of the Townsend organization today as "wonderful publicity for us."

The House voted 240 to 4 yesterday to set up a committee of eight members for the inquiry. Representative Bell (D-Missouri), author of the inquiry resolution, said that as a doctor of "ills which afflict our social structure," Dr. T. E. Townsend, pension plan leader, is a "charlatan and quack." He said he cast no reflection on Townsend's medical record.

At Townsend headquarters a copy of officers and employees gathered smiling inquiries around reporters.

"How much is Congress going to spend on the investigation?" was the question reiterated on all sides. "It is wonderful publicity,"

Robert E. Clements, national secretary and co-founder of the plan to pay everyone over 60 years 200 a month pension, said:

"These monkeys have played right into our hands. They are giving us the biggest piece of publicity we ever saw. We had hoped to get . . . We shall be exonerated and our pension plan forced to a vote."

On the House floor, Representative Celler (D-N.Y.) charged the Townsend organization with having received $200,000 from the German-American Bund. He said Townsend was "either a fool or a knave."

Nazis Urge Jail For American

Munich, Germany, Feb. 20 (AP)—A sentence of six years imprisonment for Charles Nissenbeck, naturalized United States citizen, was demanded today by the prosecuting attorney at the German-American Bund trial for "attempted high treason" drew to a close.

The prosecutor told the court that Nissenbeck was prepared to enter into communication with Otto Bresser (called leader of the anti-Nazi "Black Front") without informing German authorities in this way he acted in the normal way of Bureau agent.

The attorney for the defense described Nissenbeck as a young and rash patriot who testified freely without suppressing details.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 20 (AP)—A new story that Paul Redfern, long-lost American flit, is alive among savage South American Indians, who will not permit him to escape, was brought to civilization today by Alfred Harrod, reporter of the newspaper Standard of Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana.

Harrod claimed that he and Art Williams, former United States army pilot, found Redfern and talked to him, but were unable to remove him from the jungle.

There was no official confirmation of the story, although Harrod claims to have been a member of the Dutch section boundary commission engaged in surveying the frontier, where British Guiana, Dutch Guiana and Brazil meet, a where Harrod claims to have found Redfern.

The story is that Redfern is living in the Tumuc Humac Mountains in Western Guiana.

FLIER AWES INDIANS
Williams could not be reached for comment on the story which is similar to that first told by Tom Ruch, German-American explorer, two years ago.

Harrod's story, as published by the Standard and reported in Georgetown, follows:

After Redfern started out on Aug. 25, 1927, from Brunswick, Ga., on an attempt to fly to Rio de Janeiro, he crashed in the Tumuc Humac mountains.

Redfern was crippled by the crash, but was held in awe by the Indians because he came out of the skies.

RED FERN ALIVE, HELD CAPTIVE BY INDIANS

Harrod said that after he and Williams flew into the interior, they saw remains of Redfern's plane hanging in a tree.

Later, they found the missing American straggled in ragged under-shirt and drawers.

GUARDED WITH SPEARS
As they chatted with him, they said, 500 Indians with poisoned spears and other weapons surrounded them.

"When the Indians saw we intended to ask Redfern the way," said Harrod, "they threatened us with spears."

"On Redfern's advice we left, waiting four days in the district in the hope of effecting a rescue, but eventually we had to return without him."

Harrod said Redfern's arms and legs were broken in the crash of his plane, but that medicine men had set the bones. He said Redfern walked with crutches.

Redfern's Family Told Of Escape In Crash

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 20 (AP)—Mrs. A. J. Bedenbaugh, sister of Paul Redfern, long-missing aviator, said today Dr. Frederick Redfern, their father, had received a letter from one of the savages recently saying the approximate place that the aviator disappeared had been located.

The letter, from Art Williams, one of the fliters of the search party, related experiences of the jungle hunt for Redfern, who crashed in 1927, and gave information which led the party to believe his rescue was near at hand.

Mrs. Bedenbaugh said the family were "overjoyed" at the news he had been discovered alive, confirming a long-held hope of his father that he had not crashed fatally or been drowned in his Georgia-to-Brazil flight. They look forward to his escape from the jungle tribe holding him.

Dr. Redfern, a professor at Benedict College here, was not available for a statement.

Many Social Leaders Attend Birth Control Conference

By BETTY ALDEN

SEVERAL PROMINENT socialites had a modest opportunity to indulge their histrionic abilities in the short dramatic sketches which were presented after the fine speeches at the luncheon yesterday noon at the Copple-Plaza given as part of the all day regional conference of the American Birth Control League of America. The sketches were entitled "As Mothers Told It" and revealed some of the heart rending cases which confront the workers in the birth control clinics. Miss Elmer Colburn, Mrs. James Haines and Mrs. Francis P. White were among the half dozen or so who carried their parts with enviable poise and assurance.

Among the many prominent people who attended the luncheon and heard an extremely logical and inspiring address by Edward C. Lindeman of New York, on the paramount subject of the conference, were Miss Betty Dumaine of Groton, looking very warm and rosy in a deep garnet suit trimmed with sable. Mrs. Francis Hastings, gowned in black silk under her mink coat. Mrs. Morton P. Prince, who was chairman of the luncheon committee, wearing a dark knitted dress with a tricky little gray belt and Per-

Elizabeth Dumaine, who had. Also Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, Jr., in all black. Mrs. Leon M. Little upon whom fell the responsibility of admitting guests at the luncheon, and who wore a black gown with emerald green trimming the neckline. Mrs. Harold D. Walker. Mrs. Atherton Loring, Jr., in a black gown with a red and white coming dress of French blue with matching hat and contrasting jewelry of heavy silver. Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, also in black, with several strands of large pearls for contrast. Still others of social distinction who are backing the league with a great deal of enthusiasm and who were present at the luncheon are Mrs. T. Mott Shaw, Mrs. E. Schier Welch, Mrs. Howard B. Sprague, Mrs. William Z. Ripley, Mrs. Richard Bowditch, Mrs. Sedgewick Marquand, Mrs. William P. Evans, Mrs. Samuel Morison, Mrs. E. Lawrence Shaw, Mrs. Gideon DeForest and Mrs. Charles C. Cunningham.

Wins Award for Selling Dog Show Tickets

THE LAST FEW DAYS have been pretty apprehensive ones for "Stumpy," the little white and tan cocker spaniel which was offered as a prize to the member of the ticket committee for the Dog Show selling the most tickets up to yesterday.

Each day he would watch the faces of the various committee girls as they came in to report their success and try to conjecture in his juvenile canine fashion, as to what sort of a home they might give him. But now his worries are over and he is busy pointing out the Plimpton home with the children, and heaving deep sighs, a puffed resignation and contentment as he lolls in front of the fireplace.

Mrs. T. Barnett Plimpton turned in the largest sales and made her report at the tea which Isabel Lawrence gave yesterday afternoon for her committee which has been busy the past few weeks spreading the news of the show and selling as many tickets in advance as possible. The Dog Show begins tomorrow in Mechanics Hall and will continue through Saturday evening.

Dinner Dance at Chilton Club

MR. AND MRS. DONALD MCKAY FROST of Exeter street and Dover, gave a dinner dance last evening at the Chilton Club in honor of their niece, Miss Joan Ryerson of Chicago, and Miss Nancy Homans, a daughter of U. S. Senator.

A great many sister debutantes were among the guests who tripped the light fantastic between dinner courses in the ivory and gold ballroom of the Chilton Club which was richly festooned with pastel flowers and anemones. The dancing of the stagline had a glorious time for there were two or three dancing partners for every girl.

Included among the guests were, of course, Mary Ryerson Frost and Jane McKay Frost, daughters of the host and hostess, and their cousin, Ramele Cochrane who wore an exquisite gown of silver and white metal cloth with a long sweeping train. Also Lucy Stone and Gerry Field of Milton. Edith Lewis, Leslie Elvins and Betty Watson, three debs who arrived together. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whiteside, the latter in a filmy gown of bright blue lace. Frances Osgood whose gown of white crepe was edged with narrow bands of sable and Eleanor Williams in a frock of scarlet taffeta. Scarlet was also worn by Greta Erickson whose dress was of velvet with tiny puff sleeves and two other debs present were Rebecca Ames and Marietta Howe.

Bridesmaid at Wedding of Brother

DOTTIE PIERCE, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walworth Pierce, left Boston yesterday noon to go over to New York where on Saturday she will be a bridesmaid at the marriage of her brother, Wallace Lincoln Pierce, to Mary Marile Banard of Irvington-on-Hudson. Carefully packed in her luggage is her bridesmaid's frock of pale green taffeta, made with puffy little sleeves and a billowy skirt, and a spring-like leghorn hat trimmed with a garland of green.

Though the weekend is to be crowded with many diversified social activities here in town, Emily Dick and several friends are driving north to Woodstock where the snow capped hills are still beckoning winter sports enthusiasts.

Quite a few prominent young bachelors around town are entertaining with dinner parties tomorrow evening before the Bachelor's Ball at the Ritz Carlton and many of their guests will include friends from other cities who are to be here to participate in initiations at Harvard on Saturday. Among the dinner hosts will be Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, will entertain a large company of friends in his honor at their Exeter street home. Mr. Ronald T. Lyman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., and William S. Patton and Dr. and Mrs. John H. Pay are also entertaining friends before attending the ball.

THOUGH THEY HAVE seen girls powder their noses and apply lip rouge thousands of times, the boys in Harvard Hasty Pudding show decided to take a few lessons in stage make-up from a member of their own sex, before venturing before the footlights. Made Daily to Writers of Best Problem Letters

Five dollars every day. Ten dollars on Saturday.
I pay this money to those kind readers who write me the best letters. I do it to encourage men and women, and even girls and boys, to place their problems in my hands.

The money is welcome. I know. Dozens of readers who have won prizes have written me such beautiful letters of thanks that I am sure everyone appreciates the Boston Evening American's generosity in assisting me in my work.

One of these messages of gratitude came to my office today. It is from Mrs. F. S. C., a dear friend who lives just outside of Boston. She writes:

"Thank you so very much for the wonderful thrill and delightful happiness I received my prize check today. Words can hardly express all I would like to say, so I am just going to repeat. Thank you."

Excellent English and beauty of style don't count with me. Why some of the finest letters I have ever received were written by the women and men who make readable, interesting, and pleasant letters to read.

WRITE TODAY
Beginning today I want everyone to write me. I will publish as many of them as I can. There is only one restriction. I will not publish letters from prize winners. I will not publish letters from prize winners. I will not publish letters from prize winners.

CHAPTER 279

"I could not keep a note of the initials," she said. "I answered Mrs. Barnes' query, 'What you see, what that girl is trying to do?'"

"It is only too plain to the initiated," she returned. "She is trying to keep her partner in the direction of Mary and Noel."

"And you would like to add 'How do you know' only you are too polite," she said again. "It is very simple. Mrs. Barnes' husband told me all about it in the evening."

"She said you were all in a conspiracy—kindly—no unkindly—depending upon the standpoint from which it is viewed, Mary's or Miss Arden's—to keep the girl from getting near Noel for the rest of the evening."

"She wanted to put me on my guard, so if an opportunity came I did you even ever so slightly. I could use it so do not be hasty to read on. The more I see of Miss Arden's tactics, the more I am convinced that she is a very clever woman."

"You can help right now," I said. "My excellent mounting as I saw that all Hugh's add could do nothing more than slow the advance of Arden across the room. Mary is too foolishly proud to do anything to break Arden, and Noel, being a gentleman, is helpless. But the other four are resourceful. I don't want to go over to them, but will you watch them with me? The first time you catch an eye of either of them, call out 'Attention!' or 'Signal them unobtrusively to me.'"

"I am somewhat puzzled about my case. I am not engaged but I have been going with a young man for about four years, although not steadily. It just happened that about a month before Christmas I started seeing him again. I received a beautiful gift from him for Christmas, and in return I gave him quite an expensive gift."

"Unfortunately, we broke off a few days before the New Year. I am not in the habit of accepting gifts of this sort, and I am sure that it is very much to my advantage to do so. I will help me out of my difficulty by not making a fuss about it. I should return the gift or not? I feel that it will be improper, and that a gift given as a 'present' at Christmas or on one's birthday should not be returned, although I would much rather do so. I have not seen him since and my gift has not been returned."

"There isn't any rule about the returning of gifts. The rule that applies to this is the rule that warns the girl not to accept expensive gifts from a man with whom she is engaged to him. Since you are not engaged to him, you are free to return the gift, this is the thing for you to do. Your next accounting will be of course of expenditures, and of course of expenditures."

New 'Toning' Rinse Gives Natural Lustre to Dull And Faded Tresses

By ARIANE GOLD

WE have heard of many solutions to the white hair problem, the first and foremost being the use of dyes to obtain a permanent color. But we never knew until recently the importance of the preparation of an all-purpose toning rinse.

In the days when hair tints were given with avowed skepticism by the great majority of women as something "too quiet new," ladies didn't seem to bother a great deal whether life began at forty or not.

Of course, these are the days of the modern woman, and the modern woman is not content with a gray hair. She wants a color that is natural and that is permanent. She wants a color that is natural and that is permanent.

It is a fact that the modern woman is not content with a gray hair. She wants a color that is natural and that is permanent. She wants a color that is natural and that is permanent.

Landon's Strength

(Excerpts from an editorial published in the New York World-Telegram.)

WHEN people think of Kansas and Landon they think of a State living within its means and a Governor who believes that is the most fundamental of all policies. And why are more and more people thinking more and more of Kansas and Landon? Because of the contrast—to Washington and Roosevelt.

The Federal Government is now ending its sixth year of living beyond its income—three under Hoover and three under Roosevelt. And it is now heading into a seventh year of red ink, at the end of which the gross national debt threatens to be double what it was in 1930.

It was an economic necessity for the Roosevelt Administration to repel the deflation of the early '30's by the only way it could be repelled—by emergency spending. But the public has never thought of—never been allowed to think of—the depression as anything other than an emergency. And the Roosevelt policy of inflationary borrowing and spending is beginning to look too much like a permanent policy. So people are getting uneasy. They long to get their feet on the ground again.

THEY hear a sane, reasoning speech, such as Landon made from Topeka a few days ago—a speech which dealt calmly with the folly of debts and the wisdom of a pay-as-you-go policy. And people who have had recent and painful personal experience with debts think more and more of Kansas and Landon. The fiscal issue is crowding out all the others. And that's the reason for Landon.

If President Roosevelt doesn't want Landon for an opponent and if he doesn't want the fiscal issue to dominate the campaign it is time for him to recall his own warning of March 10, 1933. In his economy message to Congress on that day the President said:

"Too often in recent history liberal governments have been wrecked on rocks of loose fiscal policy."

INFLATION BILL FOES GAIN

Washington, Feb. 20 (INS)—House Democratic leaders today scored gains in their battle against the Plaster-Loomis farm inflation bill which precipitated the conflict between the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and House members.

The position by which backers hoped to bring the $2,000,000,000 bill to a vote was driven down to 207 names as 124 members with drew their support.

With 216 signatures needed to bring the bill to the floor, Representative James (D) of North Dakota, and his supporters, faced a serious battle. The highwater mark in the petition fight was 244.

An embargo of the House floor debate was further tightened today as a powerful outside was in progress against the "radio priest" because his attacks on Congress and President Roosevelt.

Representative O'Connor (D) of New York, and Representative Boardman (D) of Pennsylvania, indicated they would make no further speeches attacking Coughlin unless the situation is changed.

Mother, 2 Children Burned to Death

Berwick, Feb. 20 (AP)—A mother and her two children burned to death today in a fire that destroyed their home at Berwick, 15 miles from Berwick, Pa. Mrs. Margaret Kufner, 40, and Mildred, 4, were found in a bed where they had been sleeping together for warmth.

Blaze in Cellar Quincy Market

A fire caused by the blow torch of a plumber at work hawking copper water pipes in a cellar in Quincy Market, Franklin Hall district, today was quickly extinguished. Damage was estimated at $500.

Lake Erie Frozen Over

Winds from the north today froze the lake in 17 years. Lake Erie was frozen today from bank to bank, a 26-mile stretch from Erie to Long Point, Ont., according to meteorologists.

Heat Wave Mac's Need

Hollywood, Feb. 20 (AP)—

Hollywood bachelors seemed the same today with Mae West, blonde film character, traveling in Chicago on a visit.

"I may go to New York," she said when she returned last night, "but I don't like cold weather."

"I guess the only thing to do is to raise a heat wave. I'll be looking around back there—maybe for a story—but not for a husband."

A LIGHT SMOKE OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

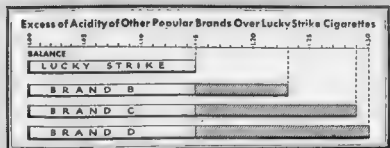

Luckies are less acid. One of the chief contributions of the Research Department in the development of A LIGHT SMOKE is the private Lucky Strike process, "IT'S TOASTED."

This preheating process at higher temperatures consists of four main stages, which involve carefully controlled temperature gradations. Quantities of undesirable constituents are removed. In effect, then, this method of preheating at higher temperatures constitutes a completion or fulfillment of the curing and aging processes.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

THIS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

A great American liberal historian and philosopher of progress died the other day in New York. His name was James Harvey Robinson whose "History of Western Europe" is one of the landmarks of modern historical method.

He graduated from Harvard the year I was born and one of the first books I started my education with as a Harvard freshman was his history and the volume of sources that accompanied it. He was only 73 and he died of heart failure, perhaps the most mysterious and dreadful scourge of modern civilized life.

The boy had a definite bias. He was liberal because he believed in this possibility of conscious progress. "The idea of progress is essentially new. Man has been progressing for thousands of years but it is practically only in our day that he came to wish to progress and entirely within our own day that he has come to see that he can only progress."

Only the conservative, he added, was not yet awake to this.

Always a Fighter For Academic Freedom

To him the supreme value of history lay in its suggestions about what might be called the technique of progress, particularly as regards social betterment. The marked trend toward social history in our day is one of the results of his work.

He was always a fighter for what is commonly called academic freedom and it was in defense of this during the days of intolerance toward the end of the Great War that he resigned from Columbia with other noted teachers and scholars. He became one of the founders of the New School of Social Research in New York, a kind of dynamo of the liberal-radical school of education.

When H. G. Wells wrote his "Outline of History" over fifteen years ago Robinson used it as the text upon which to write a little book called "The Humanizing of Knowledge," a plea for putting scholarship within the reach of the ordinary man and woman, a doctrine which has been influential in inspiring many worthy popularizations of knowledge by distinguished experts and has stimulated American publishers to copious publication of inexpensive and non-technically written books. He died with the knowledge that in America at least knowledge has been "humanized."

"Mind in the Making"

Worthwhile to Youth

If I were asked by a young man or woman where to start in an attempt to grasp and understand the basic ideas of the past twenty years, I should direct him to a few compact lectures by Professor James Harvey Robinson. They are: "The New History," dating from 1911; "The Humanizing of Knowledge," 1920 or thereabouts; and the article on "Civilization" which he wrote for the fourteenth edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Above all, I should direct him to that fascinating and stimulating book, "The Mind in the Making." To everybody not committed intellectually to the Aristotelian-Thomistic doctrine of the mind, the book should be an experience of considerable significance.

Written not for the scholar but for the inquiring layman, it has charm and humor and a fervent conviction that mind is not static but growing and the more we know about it the more we can control it and make it serviceable in our lives.

Education might be called the lengthened shadow of great teachers, original and inspiring. James Harvey Robinson's shadow was a long one and grew steadily longer as the sunset drew near.

ABOUT

TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

A smiling Brazilian of 25 who is as pretty as a smile, is among the new students registered at Radcliffe Graduate School. She's Maria Luisa Paterson, and she makes a mark in the Brazilian Legislature.

In addition, she's secretary of the finance commission in her native state of Bahia. Seems they have Fin. Coms. down there, too. With true Latin politeness, her fellow legislators have granted her leave of absence to study economics and public finance.

Miss Bittenbort holds the degree of Doctor of Public Law from the University of Rio de Janeiro. A MARJORIE McBRIDE pioneer in the fight for women's rights in Brazil, she looks not in the least like the Pankhurst ladies, or other early suffragettes. Incidentally, she says her sex has more rights in her land than their northern sisters appreciate.

The Brazilian lady is one of two from south of the equator enjoying scholarships at Radcliffe this semester. The other is Dr. Truda Brock of the zoology department of Rhodes University College, South Africa. She's studying the skull embryology of reptiles and birds. Now, there's a subject for you, on a nice, cold night!

Other women availing themselves of foreign scholarships are Edna Ferrell, University of Durham, England, studying photo-chemistry, and Shu-yen Chiang, a Chinese A. B. doing advanced work in mathematics.

When "Hickory Tree Bows" is not sitting up in front of a judge who can award blue ribbons he's a racing stable mascot. You'll see him at the Eastern Dog Club Show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night or the day after. He's the property of Mary Powers of Needham. He will be in the tierce class. One of the racers in the Powers stable won't leave his stall until he's had a frolic with "Hickory Tree."

WPA Sentimentalist

Who Made Good

Somewhere in the WPA administration there must be a sentimentalist who made good in the big city and went home and found no welcoming band awaiting him.

Whether or not, there's a band for every success and every prodigal, playing daily at the North Station under WPA auspices. Of course, if you want to come in to must you have to arrive between 3 and 4:30 in the afternoon, for that's when the alphabetical orchestra plays tunes.

Just tunes, so far. But the innovation has limitless possibilities. In New York, where the WPA music is heard it all at the Grand Central station, the band plays timely airs, such as "California, Here I Come," every time a train pulls out for the Golden Gate.

But what if the South Station were included, they could pipe up to the jolly strains of "The Sidewalks of New York" or "Michigan, My Michigan" each time an express departed for those parts.

It would depend on the individual traveler, one supposes, whether tunes for the incoming passengers should include "We Won't Go Home Until Morning" or "Home, Sweet Home."

Reardon Plays Chess

Between Dull Moments

Relaxations: James G. Reardon, commissioner of education, plays chess in off moments, and is very good at the ancient game. . . . Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, when at his Brimner street home, spends much time yarning with the firemen at a nearby station house. . . . Congressman George Holden Tinkham's idea of a pastime is taking pot shots at persons he believes are preaching destructive doctrines, particularly Communism.

Just as women are returning to normalcy, the fashion alarm sounds again from Paris, and the world's flashed forth that divided skirts are coming back. No cause for genuine alarm, however. In the spring, the new divided skirts will be called culottes, and so designed for town where they will look exactly like conventional skirts, planted front and back.

Tailors and dressmakers say they will be made of jackets, gabardine, worsteds, with man-tailored twists to match. Stylists say such an ensemble can be worn anywhere in the daytime with perfect decorum. The divided skirts will be lent to please women bent on beach sports, cruising or bicycling.

Toby Wing Parts With Coogan

ROMANCE OFF SAYS ACTRESS

The much-discussed romance between Toby Wing, dramatic blonde screen star and Jackie Coogan, the "Kid" who grew up finally is definitely off because it never was.

At least that's what Toby said today in an exclusive interview with a Boston Evening American reporter while she relaxed just before opening at the RKO Boston.

The vivacious little bundle of blinks admitted that she and Jackie had gone around a lot together a while back but added:

"I didn't exactly break with Jackie. You see I was never engaged to him. We just drifted apart."

"After the death of his father, Jackie took a trip through the Panama Canal and I made a picture in Canada."

"And somehow after that we didn't see much of each other."

Toby admitted that at present she is holding to the arm of Sir Guy Standing when she goes "places" in Hollywood. But she denied any heart interest.

"Guy has helped me tremendously with my career, and I love to go places with him, and you never see Guy out with any other girl around."

'June and January'

So perhaps there is a June and January story there after all. Speaking of "Jackie's" current girl friend, blonde Betty Grable, Toby had nothing but admiration for her.

"She's a grand girl," she said. "Toby revealed that perhaps Jackie's insistence that she mustn't go out with any other boys must have been a factor in their drifting apart."

Toby was accompanied on her Boston visit by her first wife, by her mother, Mrs. Martha Wing, and by her sister, Virginia, and Toby herself, despite the prevailing Hollywood English accent, presently her lips were drawn.

Eye on Watch

Turned in green crepe de chine pajamas, Toby kept one eye on her watch ever mindful of the time of her next personal appearance.

"Yesterday," she rejoined, "was my first vacation day in two whole months. It was wonderful. The reporter sold a volume of Browning on the table near Toby's chair and inquired:

"I don't find much time for it but I love to read poetry. If you won't sell anybody I'll admit that now and then I even try my hand at writing a bit."

The final word from the charming blonde star was that she didn't intend to "settle down just yet" with any young man. Lots of boy friends and no love interest in her motto for the immediate future anyway.

But of course one never knows when love might come along.

Says Radio Can't Replace Papers

Radio will never replace the newspaper, Ralph L. Rogers, instructor in radio advertising and production at the Boston University college of business administration, predicts.

Rogers, a former newspaperman, now teaches a radio advertising course.

"Radio is an entertainment medium, like the stage or screen, but who can predict that the stage or screen will ever replace newspapers?"

"Ever. Radio will never replace newspapers. Radio will never have room enough for complete stories or features such as go to make a well-balanced newspaper."

Delivers Steed to Bossy's 'Mounted Force'

When Mayor "Bossy" Gillis of Newburyport ordered the organization of a one-man mounted police force for his home city, first requisite of all—a steed—was promptly delivered by this girl riding academy employee, Miss Muriel Hicks. But her favorite mare, answering to the name of Emerald, was no favor in the sight of Newburyport's pompously-elected, Patrolman Eugene Sullivan. He's still walking his beat, and now he'll get a workhorse.

Maine to Speed 200 Back to Farm

Bangor, Feb. 20 (AP)—Settlement of 200 families on Maine farms by April 15 impeded today under plan of Harry Rickford, state director of the Federal Rural Resettlement Administration.

Herbert Tracy, project manager, was in New Haven, Ct., to place details before the regional office there and seek its approval. More than 600 applications for farms are on file in Maine, Rickford said, although only 200 may be accepted.

BOSSY FINDS A HOSSY

Ancient Nag for 'Mounted Police'

Newburyport, Feb. 20—Emerald, a 14-year-old gray mare, was delivered to the Newburyport police department today by a girl riding academy employee.

At 14 a day Emerald, a spirited mare, cost too much, and Mayor Andrew J. Gillis, a civic one plan to put the city's first mounted officer on an old city workhorse.

The horseplay started when Gillis shifted Patrolman Eugene Sullivan—brother of City Marshal James E. Sullivan, when the mayor decides—to a long ride on the outskirts of the city.

"On a horse," he wrote after the assignment, as a joke.

"I rode miles in the army," he said. "After foaling round mules, what's a little thing like a mare?"

The crowd took this as a wack at the mayor and gave "Bossy" the horse-laugh, but Mayor Gillis took it all in fun today and wrote a new chapter in the year of the horse marines with this statement:

"I'll help this story along, it's good publicity for the city. I've discovered that the city marshal will pay $4 a day for Emerald."

"No need to hire a horse, Chester to buy one. But we don't have to do that. There's a good dependable one at the poor farm that hasn't been used since the city bought a truck for the welfare department."

HE NEEDS CLOTHES That may be an odd item on his list. "I'll be Sullivan side it. It's a good workhorse and he won't fall off it."

But Sullivan won't ride until he gets riding tips and equipment, and the only thing "Bossy" promises with regard to this is that he is willing to have some harness made. Horses and buggy days may be coming back.

The supreme test will come tonight, tomorrow night, because Sullivan has tucked off and last night he was excited from his another patrolman who had a holiday.

In order to substitute him, they were complaining today that as a result of the drastic shift by the mayor, they are doing 11 hours' duty instead of 10. They figure their $3 a week now averages only 48 cents an hour. They have a card circulating a petition of protest.

On the other hand, stocks of gas and fuel oil declined 2,880,000 barrels, following withdrawal of 830,000 barrels in week ended February 8.

Trustees REFLECT RAIL Optimism

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Those who seek light on the outlook for American railroads during 1936 might well consider the budget report submitted to the U. S. district court at New Haven by the trustees of the N. Y. N. H. & Hartford Railroad.

They forecast a 7.2 per cent increase in gross earnings and a 12.1 per cent gain in net operating income.

These figures, which are based on a 1936 operating budget, are the first since the trustees of the N. Y. N. H. & Hartford Railroad were appointed in 1934. They are the first since the trustees of the N. Y. N. H. & Hartford Railroad were appointed in 1934.

When the trustees of the N. Y. N. H. & Hartford Railroad were appointed in 1934, they found the railroad in a state of financial collapse. They have since worked to restore the railroad to financial health.

Analogy 'Twixt Boston Red Sox and the Capital Statesmen

YOUR COMMENTATOR FINDS many points of resemblance between the present administration in Washington and the Boston Red Sox, both of whom are commercial concerns dedicated to the fundamentals of profit and loss, and both of whom have spent their earnings far into the future on lavish works projects, materials and employe costs.

The Washington statesmen, like the Red Sox, are operating in the pious hope that a benign future will more than cancel present expenditures, and that the final reckoning, in any case, is still some distance off.

Being, like Tom Yawkey, a kind of collective sugar-daddy or fiscal angel, the citizens have been fetching down into their socks for additional billions when the going gets tough, or when the federal scouts dig up some shaggy prospect in the weeds, like TVA or Passamaquoddy, and recommend it to the home office for development.

Being human and therefore subject to mortal mistake, the Federal scouts, like the ivory hunters of baseball, often discover rugged, yekel schemes which sum up pretty big on paper, but which lose the ball down their pants or are suckers for a hook in the first league skirmish.

So the citizens, being like Yawkey a National cash papa, must foot the purchase costs, charging them against future gate receipts, which in their case are compulsory receipts levied on the patrons whether they like the game or not.

Each Has a Spending Limit

BY CONSTANT FREE HAND spending in large, lump sums, the administration, like the Red Sox, may finally form a championship front by trying out masses of rookie schemes which consume the citizens' funds and usually end by going back to the weeds from whence they sprang or on the voluntary retired list. So, in either case, the race to the pennant is a race against going gradually bust. And the pennant, if it comes, may be so heavily mortgaged that there will be scant time to hoist the flag and gasp a few shouts before the sheriff comes to padlock the park.

It is conceivable that even Tom Yawkey, whose wealth has been tapped by close to $4,000,000, has his spending limit which, like the citizens' will dwindle from a torrent to a trickle before it comes to a drip and stops.

It is sensible to think that neither Tom nor the citizens will keep on perpetually pouring their resources into quicksand before finally plunging their credit spigots and shutting off the liquid flow.

In which case the ball game will stop, and the assets will sell for a fraction on the dollar, or be deserted to the elements, with the chance that the citizens might want to tear off hunks of the grandstand or fences as the only tangible keepsakes left for their outlay.

Administration Butterfingers

THE PEOPLE AND YAWKEY'S positions are analogous, except that, where Tom is showing his largesse for diversion and the hope of making happy hearts, the people are shedding tears with increasing irritation, like moisture wrung from a kitchen mop.

Does the Red Sox buy a potential home-run slugger like Jimmy Fox and if he brings a spavin in Southern training, Yawkey exits him with the investment price with as far face as possible and heaves up another shovelful from his cashbox for another slugger.

Does the administration have an expensive project like AAA come down with hardened arteries and galloping gall stones, the administration puffers up a cheerful grin and passes its honest mistakes to the citizens for chewing and gulping, regardless of the nausea.

The Boston ball fans have the privilege of buying tickets to the Fenway games or not, and that lets them out. But the citizens at large must purchase season seats to the whole national series, paying scalper's prices, and sitting on the sidelines while Farm Rehabilitation comes in the clutch and whips without taking the bat off its shoulders, or cheap Japanese and German goods tickle through the administration's shortstop, or a high-salaried outfielder like NRA gets hit on the head by a pop fly.

Price of a Pennant Goes On

THIS GETS TO BE PRETTY discouraging to the home team rosters, who lack the genuine affection fans of the Boston Yawkey era, when the players were a lot of scroumache athletes with French rolls for toes and bananas for fingers. The Boston crowds could stay away.

It may be that the citizens' billions, like Yawkey's millions, have already bought a pennant for delivery during the coming season and that, once won, the ultimate goal will be considered achieved.

But the cost of buying a pennant does not stop when the gonzo catches the breeze and hands play and people about. It goes on and on, so that before the first pennant is paid for, here comes another pennant race with a lot of busted down political goats in the lineup.

So, instead of ever getting back to even, the best that Yawkey and the collective sugar daddies of the union can hope for is to keep their chums level with the annual budget and maybe, by sheer meanness, show a little profit to pay for some new bats and balls.

But it is getting now where the people of the nation would like to cheer a nice, fast double play or score a few runs, instead of watching a team where half the players are making mud pies while the other half cusses the umpires.

BERGER Listed as HOLDOUT MARCUM BIG SOX HEADACHE

Wally Berger, star home run hitter on the Sox, is still unsigned it was revealed today.

Berger has been in the $12,000 salary class. It is understood, he feels with the New Deal at the Bee Hive he is entitled to more money. Wally has been the only strong gate attraction with the Sox.

Berger has seldom signed a contract before agreeing to the training camp, and it is unclear what he will do this year. Roy Quinn, a holdout until he fails to report at the training camp, Johnnie Marcum, who is the chief Red Sox holdout, Eddie C. has been in the Sox line. Marcum has been offered $10,000 but has refused to sign. The Sox are in a bind.

Valenti says Shuoco what he wants is to be working for the exclusive interests of the principals and the Boston Garden. Shuoco will do a work on the state of the Old Howard Theater.

Shuoco, a heavyweight sensation, named Fary, who recently whipped Tommy Loughran, may be imported here as Shuoco's next foe. Freddy Siles, sensational lightweight, who broke Vince Dundee's jaw, refused a

Robert-Malmberg Go Scares Paul

Joe Healey, Worcester wrestling promoter, can make $100,000 by staying closed, instead of staging a show he has scheduled for next Monday night.

That was an offer made him by Paul Sawyer, Boston wrestling promoter.

On that date Yvon Robert, French-Canadian challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, is paired with John Malmberg, Swedish heavyweight and a statesman of Dan O'Mahony's.

Jack McGrath, one of Worcester's Healey's closest friends, is manager of both Malmberg and the titleholder.

"It's worth $1000 to me to have the show called off and leave Robert against injury," Sawyer said. "It should be worth that to Healey, too."

I talked to McGrath and Danno last Sunday, when I finally signed them for a match with Robert.

"They're both still smarting from that Malmberg affair, when Robert kept him the ring on French-Canadian and knocked him out."

"I know McGrath and Danno, didn't want the Robert match and only accepted it because they were forced into it. I simply want to protect Yvon, myself and my fans."

Cubs Bow, 3-2, To Providence

Providence, R. I., Feb. 20.—Providence's Foxes, guided by the Philadelphia Phillies in the Canadian-American League race by defeating the Boston Cubs 3-2 here.

Tommy Finmore was fired a shoulder high shot past Percy Jackson, the Boston catch-up, after a well-placed pass from Leo Guadagnoli.

The Reds took the lead in the first period as a goal by Harrington, Bob Blake and Jean Puste scored in rapid succession in the second but Jackie Skating tied the score again before the session was half ended.

Then came Finmore's goal in the final session.

Harvard Beaten By Columbia Five

New York, Feb. 20.—Columbia's freshman team held on first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League here by defeating Harvard, 47-35.

The Lions started fast, building up a 24-13 margin in the first half. The Crimson made a battle of it in the second period, but was held to a 12-10 record in Columbia's first-half advantage.
